They're Back

A bright sunshine filled 70 degree day has brought the return of employees from Utility Service Company, Inc. of Perry, Georgia. They are here to complete the painting of the elevated water tower at the corner of 12th Street and Zschokke Street.

This project started in September with the closing of the Tot Lot playground in preparation for the maintenance and repainting of the tower. The project was expected to be completed by the end of October, however heavy fall rains and then the cooler temperatures delayed the completion until this spring.

Before work suspended the crews had completed cleaning and made needed repairs to the inside of the tank. The outside of the tower was blanketed so that the workers could safely remove the old paint. The initial coat of paint had also been applied.

The remainder of the project, applying another coat of paint, adding the city logo, installation of a messenger pipe and removing the apparatus that was attached for the blanket is expected to be completed by the end of the month, again, "weather permitting".
